CREEK OUT OF BANKS AGAIN

Railroads Practically Out of Business on Account of Water.

Illinois Central the Only Line East Which is Not in Difficulty on Account of the Rains.

Mosquito Creek went out of its banks shortly after noon yesterday and flooded the southeastern part of the city, causing immense damage to the railroads and de-Council Bluffs. Lake Manawa, as a result of Mosquito creek overflowing its banks, rose several feet and at 5 o'clock last night the resort was from two to three feet under water.

The Rock Island, Milwaukee and Burlington railroads were unable to use their main lines owing to the overflow of load after wagonlead of planks, brush Mosquito creek which washed away large sections of their tracks just east of the city. East of the Milwaukee depot on Sixteenth avenue is a lake extending south beyond the Milwaukee roundhouse. There are several feet of water in the roundhouse and by the middle of the afternoon the company was unable to get any of its engines out. Near the roundhouse a section of the track 200 feet long was washed away. A previous washout near Neola had rendered the main line of the Milwaukee useless and its trains were sent out over the Illinois Central.

Near the old Chautauqua grounds, th Rock Island suffered a bad washout and owing to the rush of the water from Mosquito creek, was unable to make any repairs as the cars with ballast could not be got near the washout. The local yards of the Burlington from Tenth avenue to Sixteenth avenue were several feet under water and by evening the switch engines were unable to make the slightest headway. The culvert bridge one and a half miles east of the city was washed out during the afternoon and this effectually put a stop to the road using its main line out of Council Bluffs. Its Denver trains from the east were run served by a stub from Belleville, Kan.

Manawa Park Flooded.

At Manawa the surrounding country was all vinder water and the damage to corn will be great. of dollars. The Northwestern was forced to send its trains out over the tracks of the Illinois Central, as its tracks between Council Bluffs and Missouri Valley were covered several feet deep with mud. The company had a large force of men at work clearing the track, and expected to have its line open before night. Except for the mud which covered it the track was said to be uninjured. East of Missouri Vailey the track of the Northwestern was reported to

Cleaning Up the Mud. The Northwestern railroad and the motor company had large forces of men at work all day clearing off the mud on Broadway between Ninth and Tweifth streets. So great was the demand for laborers that both companies were obliged to offer 40 cents an hour, and even at these wages they found it difficult to secure sufficient help. By 4 o'clock in the afternoon the motor company had cleared its tracks sufficiently to be enabled to resume through Northwestern tracks. Street Supervisor Guittar had a number of men at work, but owing to the increased wages offered by the railroad and the motor company had considerable difficulty moralising the train service in and out of in securing any help at all. As far as possible all the dangerous places where the sidewalks had caved in were barricaded with boards. The bridges at Eighth, Ninth and Tenth streets over Indian creek were closed to traffic and will be kept against them has been removed.
